Oxford Handbook of Governance

David Levi-Faur
(EDITOR)

Aims

The Oxford Handbook of Governance will be an innovative, high profile volume that will present an authoritative and accessible state-of-the-art analysis of the governance literature in political science. The volume will offer the core concepts and knowledge on governance in different levels and arenas of politics and policy making. In doing so it aims to establish itself as the essential point of reference for all those working on politics, society and economics from a governance perspective. The volume will be substantial in size and scope, and will contain contributions from approximately 40 leading scholars and practitioners—writing controversially, but always authoritatively—on the key topics and debates around the notion of governance.

Audience

The Oxford Handbook of Governance aimed at senior scholars in disciplines such as political science, public policy & administration, international relations, regulation, international law, European Union studies, regional studies and development studies.

Editor's Short Biography

David Levi-Faur is at the School of Public Policy and the Department of Political Science, the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. He is a co-founding editor of Regulation & Governance, a Willey-Blackwell journal that serves as a platform for the study of regulation and governance in the social sciences. He held research positions at the University of Haifa, the University of Oxford, the Australian National University, and the University of Manchester as well as visiting positions at the London School of Economics, the University of Amsterdam, the University of Utrecht, and University of California (Berkeley). He currently works on a book manuscript entitled Regulating Capitalism: Governance and the Global Spread of Regulatory Agencies" under contract with Princeton University Press. His recent work includes many papers in leading professional journals as well as special issues of the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Sciences (The Global Diffusion of Regulatory Capitalism, co-edited with Jacint Jordana) and Governance (Varieties of Regulatory Capitalism).
March 18th, 2011

Advisory Board

Peter Haas (UMass Amherst); Arie Kacowicz (Hebrew University), Orly Lobel (University of San Diego) Guy Peters (Pittsburgh University); Jon Pierre (University of Gothenburg); Thomas Risse (Free University of Berlin), Eva Sorensen (Roskilde University), Frans van Waarden (University of Utrecht), David Vogel (UC Berkeley)

OXFORD HANDBOOK OF GOVERNANCE

The Oxford Handbook of Governance will be a key volume for Oxford's academic publishing in Political Science and the social sciences more broadly - part of the ongoing programme of prestigious Oxford Handbooks being commissioned and published across the humanities and social sciences. OUP will produce the book to the highest production standards, marketing it alongside our other famous reference works, to a range of relevant disciplines (including political science, business and management studies, and law) around the world.

The audience for The Oxford Handbook of Governance would be a combination of research institutions, individual academics, and postgraduate students, as well as those working in and around government itself, with contributions being written with all these groups in mind. Ultimately motivating the Oxford Handbook project is the idea that there is an increasing intellectual gulf between writings in academic journals, student-oriented textbooks, and material for professionals in the field. Textbooks tend to be aimed at beginners; work in academic journals is often narrow and arcane, speaking to a small and specialized audience; publications directly relevant to professionals seldom provide wider or deeper reflection. Bridging the gap at present are occasional "Review Articles" which survey a field and offer a contemporary critical analysis of a body of theory and research and where it is headed. The idea of The Oxford Handbook of Governance would be to produce an influential volume that brings together an engaged and provocative form of this sort of Review Article in a systematic and cohesive way.
March 18th, 2011

The essays, taken together, would seek to define the study of governance across all its incarnations by crystallizing the debates that surround it in a number of disciplines.
Anyone within the social science community who is interested in politics would refer to the Handbook as an authoritative guide to the "State of the Art"; anyone in related disciplines, particularly of courses business, management, law, sociology and geography would refer to the book to bring themselves up to speed when investigating a new area or in order to place their own work in a particular context. Those whose work brings them into significant contact with the various elements of political life should also gain from consulting a copy.

The Oxford Handbook of Governance would be a substantial volume - it needs to be to match the ambition of the project. The book would have contributions from around 40 scholars and amount to, about 700 or 800 printed pages. Those contributions would be from the best and most interesting people working in the area, writing - perhaps controversially but always authoritatively - on the key topics and debates that define the institution.
Oxford Handbook of Governance

Tentative Table of Contents:

Preface

I. Introduction
- Chapter 1: Still the Age of Governance?
  - David Levi-Faur, Hebrew University
- Chapter 2: Governance as a Political Theory
  - Guy Peters, University of Pittsburgh
- Chapter 3: Waves of Governance
  - Rod Rhodes, University of Tasmania & Australian National University
- Chapter 4: New Governance as School of Thought and Policy Approach
  - Orly Lobel, University of California, San Diego

II. Theoretical Lenses
- Chapter 5: Governance Networks
  - Jacob Torfing, Roskilde University
- Chapter 6: Cybernetic Models of Governance
  - Guy Peters, University of Pittsburgh
- Chapter 7: Governance and Complexity
  - Volker Schneider, University of Konstanz
- Chapter 8: Conundrical Governance,
  - Peer Zumbansen, York University
- Chapter 9: Good Governance
  - Bo Rothstein, University of Gothenburg
- Chapter 10: Governance and Learning
  - Fabrizio Gilardi, ETH Zürich & Claudio Radaelli, Exeter University
  - Laurence Lynn, University of Texas at Austin

III. Governance and the Reform of the State
- Chapter 12: Governance and Institutional Flexibility
  - Jon Pierre, University of Gothenburg
- Chapter 13: New Public Management vs. Governance
  - Eric-Han Klijn Erasmus University Rotterdam
March 18th, 2011

Chapter 14: Governance and Innovation
Eva Sorensen, Roskilde University

Chapter 15: Governance and State Structures
Niamh Hardiman, UCD School of Politics and International Relations

Chapter 16: New governance and policy instruments
Amos Zehavi, Tel Aviv University

Chapter 17: Bureaucratic Reforms & Governance
Per Lægreid, Bergen University, and Thomas Christiansen, University of Oslo

Chapter 18: Governance and Patronage
Matthew Flinders, University of Sheffield

Chapter 19: Governance and State Capacity
Felicity Matthews, University of Sheffield

Chapter 20: The Impact of Governance
Klijn, Eric-Han, J. Edelenbos & A. van Buuren, Erasmus University Rotterdam,

Chapter 21: Governance as consultation and negotiation: old wine, old bottles and changing policy style? Jeremy Richardson, Nuffield College & University of Canterbury

IV. ACTORS AND THEIR STRATEGIES

Chapter 22: New Forms of Corporate Political Activity
David Coen, University College London

Chapter 23: NGOs: between advocacy, service provision and regulation, Todd Beer, Indiana University, Wade Roberts, Colorado College, Tim Bartley, Indiana University

Chapter 24: Actors of Knowledge
Diane Stone, Central European University

V. ECONOMIC GOVERNANCE

Chapter 25: Governance after the Crisis
Graham Wilson, Boston University

Chapter 26: Modes of Economic Governance
Dieter Plehwe, Social Science Center,

Chapter 27: The Governance of Markets: On Generating Trust in Transactions, Frans Van Waarden, University of Utrecht

Chapter 28: The Governance of Central Banks: What's Old, What's New, and What's Evolving, Ellen Meade, American University
March 18th, 2011

Chapter 29: The Governance of Financial Risks
Phil Cerny, Rutgers University

VI. GOVERNANCE OF RISKS

Chapter 30: The Governance of Risks
Liz Fisher, University of Oxford

Chapter 31: Governance of Science & Technology
Susana Borras, Copenhagen School of Business

Chapter 32: The Governance of Global Climate Change
Thomas Bernauer, ETH Zürich & Lena Schaffer, ETH Zürich

VII. DEMOCRATIC GOVERNANCE

Chapter 33: Participatory Governance: From Theory to Practice
Frank Fischer, Rutgers University

Chapter 34: Modes of Democratic Governance
Amit Ron, Arizona State University

Chapter 35: The New Citizenship & Governance: Alternative Intersections
Susan Phillips, Carleton University

Chapter 36: Collaborative Governance
Chris Ansell, University of California, Berkeley

Chapter 37: The Democratic Quality of Collaborative Governance
Yannis Papadopoulos, University of Lausanne

Chapter 38: Participatory Governance in Public Health: Choice, but no Voice, Yael Yishai, University of Haifa

Chapter 39: The Fall and Rise of Workplace Governance
Cynthia Estlund, New York University

Chapter 40: Governance and Voluntary Regulation
Colin Provost, University College London

Chapter 41: E-Governance and E-Democracy
Eran Fisher, Ben Gurion University

Chapter 42: E-Governance and the Fifth Estate
William Dutton, University of Oxford

Chapter 43: The Governance of Privacy
Abe Newman, Georgetown University
VIII. EUROPEAN GOVERNANCE

Chapter 44: The European Union – A Unique Governance Mix?
Tanja Borzel, Free University of Berlin

Chapter 45: Experimentalist Governance: The European Union and Beyond, Charles Sabel, Colombia University and Jonathan Zeitlin, University of Amsterdam

Chapter 46: Multi Level Governance in the European Union, Ian Bache, Sheffield University

Chapter 47: The Dynamic Governance of European Delegated Legislation: The Role of the European Parliament in Comitology
Adrienne Heritier, European University Institute, Florence and Catherine Moury, Lisbon University

Chapter 48: EU External Governance and Europeanization Beyond the EU
Frank Schimmelfennig, ETH Zurich

IX. GLOBAL GOVERNANCE

Chapter 49: Governance and Global Policy
William W. Coleman, University of Waterloo

Chapter 50: Governance, International Order, and World Order
Arie Kacowicz, Hebrew University

Chapter 51: Governance in Areas of Limited Statehood
Thomas Risse, Free University of Berlin

Chapter 52: Global Governance & Governmentality
Alexandria Jayne Innes, University of Kansas, Oded Lowenheim, The Hebrew University & Brent J. Steele University of Kansas

Chapter 53: Global Governance as Multi Governance
Michael Zuren, Hertie School of Governance, Berlin

Chapter 54: Global Governance of Transnational Private Regulation
Fabrizio Cafaggi, European University Institute

Chapter 55: The Challenges of Transnational Economic Governance
Djelic Marie-Laure ESSEC Business School & Kerstin Sahlin, Uppsala University